

January 19, 2024

Dear President Wu, Chancellor Matos Rodríguez, and CUNY Board of Trustees:

On Wednesday morning, January 10, just two weeks before the start of the spring semester, Queens College President Frank Wu fired 26 lecturers from twenty departments. 1,623 students are currently enrolled in the 79 courses these faculty were slated to teach this spring, leaving them with no instructor. The fired faculty members are in full-time positions that were expected to last one or two years. Called “substitute” positions, they are normally offered to experienced and valued instructors who were formerly in adjunct positions. Mass firing of these faculty in the middle of the academic year is unprecedented.

The lecturers, who have already spent countless hours preparing their classes for spring semester, have lost their full-time jobs (and health insurance and other benefits) with virtually no notice. This abrupt and last-minute action will cause financial hardship for these dedicated teaching professionals and chaos in the departments that have lost key instructional staff. The timing of the decision means that most of these instructors will be unable to secure spring semester employment, since most higher educational institutions schedule spring courses in mid-fall. This decision, and its timing, are unconscionable.

Further, this decision demonstrates incredible disregard for Queens College students and the college's own goal of retaining students until graduation. Departments and department chairs must now scramble to adjust course schedules so that required classes still run, lest students lose necessary courses for graduation in the spring. Queens College students come from a variety of backgrounds, but many hold jobs and have family responsibilities. They are not students living in a dorm, enjoying the luxury of only attending college. They register for courses and plan their work schedules, their child care, and the rest of their lives around specific courses during a few weekdays. These last-minute disruptions will leave students unable to reschedule to another time. The College's decision sends a clear message: Queens College is on the verge of collapse, and fires faculty at the last minute, causing havoc with the class schedule. Why would students stay at Queens College?

The flimsy rationale for the mass layoff is a new demand by the CUNY administration that Queens College maintain a budgetary surplus of $1.5 million. CUNY's Chief Financial Officer, apparently responsible for the demand, was appointed less than four months ago and has no experience in higher education. QC had previously submitted - as required - a budget plan that eliminated the college's deficit; however, this budget plan - which would have required no faculty or staff firings - was not approved because under the newly appointed CFO, QC was required to submit a new budget that not only closed the budget gap but also created a budgetary surplus. Faculty are losing their jobs and health insurance, and students and departments are made to scramble so that our campus can have a financial “cushion,” when it's not even clear why the College needs one. President Wu knew CUNY Central's budget cuts for Queens might lead to this radical step. He quietly instructed his financial team not to add their approval to routine hiring paperwork for these faculty. Yet, he did not say a word to department chairs until the firings were finalized, and included academic deans only in the last hours, after the decision had been made. This secrecy and lack of transparency is compounded by the last-minute nature of the decision-making: it is unprofessional and damaging to the institution.

The firings come in the wake of decades of under-investment in faculty recruitment at Queens College. Retiring or departing full-time faculty have often been replaced by part-time faculty who, although highly-skilled professionals, cannot maintain program continuity. Instead of taking a stand against deepening economic austerity for Queens College, President Wu has accommodated to normalized scarcity. His decision to fire 26 full-time faculty sends the message to the CUNY Board of Trustees and New York State legislators that the College can absorb not only this budget cut but any future cuts. Worse, he has delivered the required surplus by attacking the most vulnerable. As faculty, staff, students, and alumni who are outraged by the reckless firing of valued colleagues and the disregard for students' education, we need to see evidence that President Wu is on the side of Queens College, not the new CFO.

We demand:

1. Queens College rehire all 26 people on substitute lines and reinstate their classes.
2. President Wu speak out publicly against these cuts and the harm they are doing to our campus. We need CUNY and NY State to invest more funding in our campus if we want to retain our students and see enrollment increase.
3. President Wu start being more transparent about the financial state of our college. The Queens College community deserves a transparent explanation of why CUNY is crushing our campus, and how the Queens College administration plans to push back against this austerity.

Signed,
